

The Geberit Sustainability Report 2007 is now available

Geberit AG, Rapperswil-Jona, May 29, 2007

Geberit has just now released its second Sustainability Report since 2004. The report was prepared in accordance with the authoritative guidelines of the Global Reporting Initiative (GRI) and has been awarded the best possible rating (A-Level).

Global warming, water scarcity and sustainability are also subjects of increasing importance for the plumbing technology industry. As a leader in the field of sustainability, Geberit has addressed itself intensively to these concerns. In its Sustainability Report 2007, under the heading "Sustainably enhancing quality of life", Geberit outlines the company's understanding of sustainability.

In addition to numerous facts and background information on environmentally friendly dealings and social responsibility, the report also contains comments from various people with whom Geberit maintains a dialog, for example customers, employees and suppliers. There are also comments from a financial analyst and a water expert.

The subject of water usage is the focal point of the report. Geberit illustrates the environmental principles to which the company has committed itself with regard to its handling of water, energy and other resources.

The Sustainability Report is available in German and English and can be ordered on the Internet at www.geberit.com. An online version of the report as well as an extensive GRI index of contents with supplementary information is also to be found at www.geberit.com.
